Few people can say a Jr. High School, extra credit assignment changed their life – but Kendall can.

The assignment - a harbinger of an awesome career of speaking, facilitation and instruction - was to write and deliver a speech... The Veterans of Foreign Wars sponsored the competitive statewide contest. Kendall placed 1st at the local, district, and state levels. The rest, as they say, is "His Story!"

Kendall C. Wright is a leader, a role model, an entrepreneur, a clergyperson, and a respected subject matter expert. All true today, but, the odds weren't always so kind.

Few "subject experts," at the time of Kendall's birth, would have expected Kendall to amount to anything more than another name on a long list of criminals and malcontents. Born into an environment laced with overt discrimination and low expectations, the "experts" would have projected Kendall to be nothing more than a societal liability. But they were wrong. As Kendall passionately points out in his dynamic keynote presentations, "We are bigger than our circumstances."

Kendall emphatically proclaims, "Statistics are not individualistic. Needless to say - the sociologists, psychologists, economists, social workers, and the statisticians – were wrong. What the "subject experts" couldn't account for was a loving mother and a praying grandmother. What the "subject experts" couldn't account for was a caring community and inspiring mentors. What the "subject experts" couldn't account for was my steadfast commitment to A.C.T."

Kendall has experienced the summits of success and learned valuable lessons in the valleys of disappointment. These lessons and experiences contribute to the reservoir of wisdom and insight that Kendall brings to the platform, classroom or coaching table.

Today, Kendall shares his unique perspective and philosophy with audiences across the country and around the world.
